THE SOLDIER'S DREAM. The following touching lines were written during the war by the Rev. J. L. Reynolds, of South Carolina University, in commemoration of a beautiful instance of woman's devotion that occurred while the University buildings, Columbia, South Carolina, were used as a hos-

The soldier boy lay on his pallet in pain,
Where the student his vigils once kept,
And there came with each throb of his fever-parched Sweet memories of home, and he wept. But a daughter of earth, in her womanly meetness,

Drew near him her vigils to keep,
And the charm of her voice, in its sisterly sweetness.
Beguiled the sad soldier to sleep. As her delicate hand bathed his pain-furrowed brow,

And her fan plied its office of blessing,
He dreamed of the clime where the Heavens endow
The good with an angel's caressing. His hard bed of straw scemed as light as the air,
An angel's wings rustled above.
On his pale, sunken check fell a tromulous tear,
And a voice whispered accents of love.

Bowildered and charmed by the beautiful vision, Unconscious of place and of time, He deemed himself now in the regions elysian, And now in his childhood's fair clime.

Thus calming the weeper, and soothing the anguished,
The visitant watched at his side.
And the soldier boy turned from the bed where he languished, With a smile to the angel—and died.

LETTER NUMBER MAYIL.

WATERLOO, BELGIUM, 1866.-After NAPOLEON'S disastrous Russian campaign, in which he sacrificed the finest army ever raised in France, a sixth and grand coalition was formed, with the determination of crushing the man who had made himself a terror and disturber of the peace of Europe. The allies of France, whose friendship had been obtained by conquest and held at the point of the bayonet, were glad of an opportunity of throwing off the French yoke, and readily united with the allies in making war upon NAPOLEON. Even the great Emperor of Austria, on whom Napoleon relied as his strongest and surest ally, in consequence of his marriage to Maria Louisa, joined the coalition. In a short time the allies had in the field more than a million of men, and were marching on the French metropolis from all quarters. Napoleon exerted almost superhuman powor in the defence of his cherished capital, but he was finally crushed by overwhelming numbers.

On the 31st March, 1814, the Emperor Alexander of Russia and the King of Prussia entered Paris in triumph. Two hundred and fifty thousand men—triumph. Two hundred and fifty thousand meninfantry, cavalry, and artillery—marched thirty abreast through the most frequented thoroughfares of the city. The crowd of impulsive Frenchmen, who so recently shouted "Vive i Emperour Napoleon," now shouted for Emperor Alexander and King of Prussia, and "Vive Louis XVIII."

On the 11th April, 1814, Napoleon very reluctantly signed the Act of Abdication, rencuncing for himself and his family the thrones of France and ly signed the Act of Abdication, rencuncing for himself and his family the thrones of France and Italy. Louis XVIII, who had been residing in England, was recalled and declared King. Thus were the old Bourbons again restored to power, and Napoleon banished to Elba, a small island in the Mediterranean Sea. What a spectacle! Behold this man of a giant intellect, who so recently ruled the powerful nations of Europe with an iron rod, now consigned, in humiliation and disgrace, to a barren island not ten miles square. Napoleon deserved this severe punishment for his wrongs to Josephine. The allied sovereigns who had dethrened Napoleon were assembled at Vienna, arranging for a glorious peace, and to settle the affairs of Europe. Vienus became the scene of gaiety and brilliant fetes. It was at one of these splendid entertainments that the astounding intelligence was received that Napoleon had escaped ligence was received that Napoleon had escaped from Elba, and offected a landing in France. The an-nouncement led almost instantly to a seventh coalinonnement led almost instantly to a seventh coalition of the great powers to destroy the man they regarded as the enemy of mankind—he was thought a fit subject for public vengeance. Napoleon marched from the south of France to Paris in twenty days, without opposition. Marshal Ney, who was sent to intercept him, promised to "L-ing back to Paris the dangerous Corsican in an iron cage." The sight of his old companion in arms was too much for old Ney—he no longer remembered his oaths and promises to Louis XVIII, but joined Napoleon, and marched with him in triumph to the Tuileries, where they arrived on the 20th March, 1815, ten months from the date of his banishment.
On the night of the 16th June Wellington was On the night of the 16th June Wellington was hrilliant hall, given by the Duchess of Richmond at Brussels; a courier entered and in-formed the British General that Napoleon, with his army, was within ten miles of Brussels! It is said the Iron Duke turned pale, and instantly left, accompanied by his officers, to prepare for the great conflict. The bells were rang, war trum-pets sounded, drums beat to arms. In an hour pets sounded, drums beat to arms. In an hour the immense English army was marching. Wellington halted on the spacious field of Waterloo. In this strong position he carefully selected his ground, stationed his troops, and dispatched a messenger for Blucher, who had under his command 65,000 splendid Prussian soldiers. No spot in Europe has interested me more that the world-renowned battle-field of Waterloo. It was here, half a captury age, the most important battle ren half a century ago, the most important battle re-corded in history was fought. My guide pointed out the position selected by the great English chieftain, which he so hercically defended against the desperate assaults of the French. Also the old oak tree under which Napoleon assembled his officers to give them his final orders. "The army officers to give them his final orders. "The army of the enemy," sad he, "outnumbers us one-fourth; there are, however, ninety chances in our favor to ten against us." It was a bright sunny morning in June, the day appointed for rest; silence reigned on the field, but every one knew in a few hours the fierce battle would be raging. The surgeons had established their hospitals in the rear, and stood with bandages, splinters, knives and saws, ready to perform their work of mercy. At ten o'clock the dreadful struggle commenced. Wellington felt that the honor of old England was resting on his broad shoulders, and Napoleon knew that his fate, and that of his empire, depended on the result of this day's battle. The brave French soldiers made charge after charge, shouting "Vive P Empereur !" They were pressing he will upon the English lines. Wellington stood anxionsly looking for the Prussians under Blucher. He excitaimed, "Would to Heaven Blucher or night would come!" One whole day of slaughter had chaimed, "Would to Heaven Blucher or night would come!" One whole day of slaughter had passed, and the battle hung, as it were, in the balance. Napoleon lelt that victory was near at hand, and was about making a final charge with the Old Guard, which, it was said, never charged in vain. At this critical moment heavy cannonading was heard and an army was seen in the distance advancing rapidly to the scenerof action. Napoleon thought it was Marshal Grouchy, and was giving orders for a simultaneous attack by his whole force. Alas I it was not Grouchy, but Bulow and Blucher with 60,000 fresh troops. A shout of exultation ran through the allied lines. Napoleon saw that all was lost unless he could break the against the dreadful assaults of the French; he now ordered his reserved guard, which had never failed him in battle. As these world-remowned old soldiers, under Marshal Ney, defiant of death, pressed on, piercing the British line, it is said both armies gazed with awe upon the scene. Marshal Ney, in a few moments, had six horses shot from under him. With sabre in hand, he marched on foot, leading his men into the year laws of death. Blueber with his lector. hand, he marched on foot, leading his men into the very jaws of death. Blucher, with his legions of infantry, cavalry and artillery, like an avalanche, swept over this little band of brave men, until, almost to a man, they were waltering in blood. General Cambronne, who was bleeding from a dozen wounds, was surrounded by a small remanding a capital control of truce was sent demanding a capital control of truce was sent demanded in former of the terrible catastrophe at Waterloo, which threw the city into confusion and despair. Seeing all was lost, Napoleon abdicated in favor of his son, and attempted to escape to America; but this was impossible, as the French coast was blockaded from Brest to Bayonne. Napoleon finally determined to throw himself upon the hospitality of the British nation, claimupon the hospitality of the British nation, claiming the protection of their Court. The English, having the French lion in their possession, determined to place him where he could do no more mischief. The Government sent him a prisoner that the first to St. Helena, a small island in the Atlantic Ocean, between the Continents of Africa and South

Let us but cast our eyes over the pages of history, and we find Ambition is the rock on which most of the great military heroes perish. Alexander, after having climbed the Alpine heights of ambition, looked down upon the conquered nations and wept because there was not another world to conquer. He died among strangers in a fit of debanch. Hamibal crossed the ice-clad Alps and put to flight the armies of the Mistress of the world. After having stained his hand in the blood of his fellow creatures, he put an end to his miscrable existence by committing suicide. Casar, after conquering a thousand cities, and murdering a million of his foes, was assessinated by his friends. Bonaparte, who had filled the earth with the terror of his name, became a lonely exile. Such was the sad fate of four of the greatest military men in ancient or modern times.

The loan market is easy and inactive at 7 per cent. The speculative bank officers who are alleged to be guilty of sacrificing their honor and prostituting their position by acting in collusion with the bear clique of brokers, to produce stringency in money, are vaguely talked of in the street; but the grave charges made do not seem as yot to have been brought home to any individual bank or person. The rumor is, however, revived of a congressional inquiry, and several institutions will probably find their standing impaired. The discount demand is dult and few bills are offering.

The stock market has recovered from the recent depression. Government securities are buoyant; the dealers who were yest-rday most anxious to sell, are free buyers to-day, at an advance of %a% per cent, on the prices at which they sold.

BOSTON, January 9.—Business continues quiet, with but a moderate demand for spring goods. Prices are, however, fully sustained, and with the present firmness in the leather market and for materials for manufacturing, the price of boots and shoes is more likely to advance than to recede. We already hear of some advance being asked on ladies' serge goods, which have been depressed of late, and rannifacturers are unwilling to take orders at last fall's prices. We have in town a few buyers, but their demands are not sufficient to cause much movement with the trade. The largest lots taken are by California and the extreme Southern trade. Manufacturers are commencing to work gradually, as the prices of labor are favorable to them for making up stock. The principal shipments of the week have been to San Francisco, 1075 cases; New York, 1091 cases; New Orleans, 549 cases; Galveston, 237 casos; Philadelphia, 195 cases; Savannah, 116 cases. The total for the week, by sea and rail, has been 4026 cases, being the smallest week's clearance for the past two years from this market. Total ance for the past two years from this market. New Orleans Market.

New Orleans Market.

New Orleans, January 10.—Corron—The sales today were certainly not active, yet they amounted in the aggregate to between 4300 and 4500 bales, tending to the inside figure of our yesterday's quotations. Factors kept up their figures remarkably well during the day, not pressing their stocks, but devoting their time to delivery of previous sales, clearing up, etc. The truth is there is not much Cotton offering in the market—necessarily cannot be with the now well known character of the crop. There were occasionally sales at 1/4c below yesterday's quotations, and we may quote the market easier on buyers, but the general quotations of yesterday prevail, only tending to the inside. Gold quotations this afternoon from New York showed a partial recovery from the previous decline, closing at 133a1331/4, which may tend to check decided decline on cotton.

It is estimated that seven-tenths of all adult ailments proceed from a deceased and torpid liver. The biliary secretions of the liver overflowing into the atomach poison the entire system and exhibit the above symptoms. After long research, we are able to present the most remarkable cure for these horrid nightmare diseases, the world has ever produced. Within one year over six hundred and forty thousand persons have taken the Plankators Hittens, and not an instance of complaint has come to our knowledge!

It is a most effectual tonic and agreeable stimulant, suited to all conditions of life.

The reports that it relies upon mineral substances for its active properties, are wholly fasse. For the satistication of the public, and that patients may consult their physicians, we append a list of its components.

OALBATA BARE.—Colebrated for over two hundred years in the treatment of Fever and Ague, Dyspepsia, Weakness, etc. It was introduced into Europe by the Countsa, wife of the Viceroy or Peru, in 1640, and afterwards sold by the Jesuits for the enormous price of its own weight in riber, under the name of Jesuits Pouders, and was finally made public by Louis XVI. Chickering & Sons: LONDON, July 25, 1886 Having played upon a Piano-forte made by Messer. Chickering & Sons, of Boston and New York, I have much pleasure in testifying to its general excellence.

For sweetness and brilliancy of tone, delicacy of touch and magnificent power for concert purposes, I consider it a really Grand Piano-Forte, and Dictionally The Rest I have seen of American Mandrauture, ARABELLA GUDDARD.

Among the chief points of excellence of the Chickering Planos; of which speak the renowned artists in their congratulatory testimonials to the Measra Chickering, are the greatest possible depth, richness and volume of tone, combined with a rare brilliancy, clearness and perfect evenness throughout the entire scale; and, shove all, a surprising duration of sound, the pure and sympathetic quality of which never changes under the most delicate or powerful touch.

During the past forty-three years this firm has manuacultured.

80,000 PLANOS. In the construction of which they have introduced every known and valuable improvement. They have invariably been selected and used by all of the world's acknowledged great artists who have visited this country professionally, both for private and public use. THALBERG.

I consider Chickering & Sons' Pianos, beyond com-parison, the best I have ever seen in America. GOTTECHALK. I consider Chickering & Sons' Pianos superior to any I consider Chickering & Sons' Planos superior to any in the world.

They are unrivalled for their singing qualities and for the harmonious roundness of their tone. There is a perfect homogeneity throughout all the registers. The upper notes are remarkable for a clearness and purity which I do not find in any other instrument, while the base is distinguished for power without harshness, and for a magnificent sonority.

WEHLI. Your Pianes are superior to any I have ever seen in this country or in Europe.

I have never heard a tone so perfect; it yields every expression that is needed in music, and its quality is capable of change to meet every sentiment. This is a rare power, and is derived from the perfect purity of its tone, together with its sympathetic, elastic and well balanced touch.

POZNANSKI.

During the past eight years I have constantly played upon the justly celebrated Erard Planos; yours are the only instruments that I have found, either here or in Europe, to equal them in all their points of excellence.
